WHO PAYS NEW DEAL TAXES?

When the New Deal commenced pouring out huge sums of money it was contended the rich would pay the bill. Much was said about plans for redistribution of wealth. But after five years there is undisputed evidence that the little fellow has and will pay for the New Deal—the small merchant, farmer, factory worker—in brief the man and woman earning from fifteen to fifty dollars a week. They may not know it, but they are now paying the bill and if the Treasury goes through with its present plans each will pay a great deal more. These conclusions are based on the details of the revenue received by the Federal Government during the fiscal year which ended on June 30. In the twelve months ending on that date, the Treasury collected $6,017,952,563—the largest sum ever collected by the Treasury in any year. Did this money come from the rich? Only about one-fourth came from the pockets of those who might be called "rich." The remainder was paid by the rest of us. Taxes on individual incomes produced $1,286,311,881. Many persons with incomes of less than $5,000 a year contributed to that total, but for the sake of argument let's say that the rich paid it all. Let's also say the rich paid the $382,175,325 of estate taxes, the $34,698,739 in gift taxes and the $6,216,735 in "unjust enrichment" taxes. This is a total of $1,709,402,682 or only 28.4 per cent of the entire sum collected by the Federal Treasury.

Where did the remainder come from? Corporations and business houses paid the Treasury income, excess-profits and capital stock taxes totaling $1,475,849,680. But those taxes did not come out of the pockets of the rich. They were shifted, as all business costs are, to consumers in the form of higher prices. Taxes on articles of consumption produced $1,730,852,725. Taxes on payrolls—and therefore squarely on workers—yielded $742,660,225 under the guise of Social Security. Customs—which also is a tax on consumption—yielded $359,187,249. The major part of all these taxes were paid by the average man. They are the "hidden taxes" of government. Moreover, these consumption taxes bear down hardest on the working man than they do on the rich, not only because he spends a greater proportion of his income on articles subject to tax but because the rates in effect discriminate against him. For instance, the Federal tax on a package of cigarettes is between 40 and 60 per cent of the retail price. But the tax on a cigar—which the rich man smokes—is but 4 to 5 per cent of the retail price. The pipe smoker pays a Federal tax of 15 per cent on the retail price of his tobacco. The Federal tax on the lowly box of matches is 26 per cent of the retail price. The working man who plays cards with a pack which costs twenty cents pays a Federal tax of fifty percent, but the rich who play bridge with a pack costing one dollar pay a tax of only ten percent.

Despite the heavy taxation now in effect, the New Deal in the current year will have a deficit of more than four billion dollars. This, too, in the end will have to be paid by the workers of the Nation, along with the 16 billion dollar debt already accumulated by the New Deal, because the rich cannot pay very much more than they are now paying. Surely a person receiving an income of $5,000 a year would not be called rich. But let's start at that figure. If the Federal Government during the last five years confiscated every penny of all incomes in excess of $5,000 annually—all of it—the amount thus collected would have paid but 73.4 percent of the New Deal bill.

No truer words were ever spoken than those uttered by Franklin Delano Roosevelt in 1932 when he said: "Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors because they are a burden on production and are paid through production. If those taxes are excessive, they are reflected in idle factories, in tax-sold farms, and in hordes of hungry people, tramping the streets and seeking jobs in vain." When Mr. Roosevelt uttered those words the tax collections of all governments in this country represented approximately seventeen percent of the national income. Today such tax collections take about twenty-five percent of the national income. No wonder we now have "hordes of the hungry tramping the streets and seeking jobs in vain."

TRADING ON HUMAN NEED

Recently we read a statement to the effect that if the New Deal could only balance the national budget as easily as it balances its attitude toward the campaign methods of some of the Senatorial candidates, the day would be a happy one from an economic, if not from a moral, standpoint. In this connection it is interesting to read the statement of the Senate Campaign Expenditure committee about the campaign of Senator Allen W. Barkley, Governor A. B. Chandler and their henchmen in Kentucky. It states:

"It is certain that organized efforts have been, and are being made, to control the vote of those on relief work, and that contributions have been sought and obtained from federal employees. . . . Furthermore, the committee found that 'state officials, charged in part with the distribution of federal funds for old-age assistance and for unemployment compensation, have been required to contribute from their salaries and of their services.'"

"The committee sent investigators into the field, and it finds that this organization of Senator Barkley had coerced relief workers and made federal employees divvy up. Governor Chandler was charged with having lined up the state employees and with exploiting them. 'It is difficult to reconcile Senator Barkley's alleged recourse to demagoguery,' we are told, 'in this campaign with the lofty sentiments expressed by him, when, as majority leader, he pled for the President's relief measure in the recent Congress. He gave the impression then that his sole interest in the enormous expenditure was to see men put back to work. Of course, he may have had himself in mind, for his term as senator was then expiring. At times politicians are subtle.'"

THE FARMER'S DOLLAR

That the rate of output has as much to do with the farmer's prosperity as the rate of income, is well illustrated by the following comment which we noticed this week in an official statement from the National Grange:

"A slight increase in local market prices of all groups of farm products except grains raised the index of prices received by farmers to 95 per cent of their pre-war level from mid-June to mid-July, according to the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. The current index, however, was 30 points under the level of a year ago. Following are the average prices received by farmers on the products indicated, based on averages of reports from more than 9000 correspondents throughout the United States: Wheat, 60.8 cents per bushel; corn, 53.7 cents; oats, 24 cents; rye, 41.1 cents; potatoes, 65.5 cents per bushel; hay, $7.11 per ton; tobacco, 24.5 cents per pound; hogs, $8.56 per hundred pounds; beef cattle, $6.74 per hundred-weight; veal calves, $7.88 per hundred pounds; sheep, $3.46 per hundred pounds; lambs, $6.84 per hundred pounds; butter, 25.6 cents per pound; butterfat, 24.2 cents per pound; milk, wholesale, per hundred pounds, $1.56; milk, retail, per quart, 10.3 cents; chickens, live, 15 cents per pound; eggs, 19.9 cents per dozen; wool, 18.7 cents per pound; milk cows, per head, $85.70; horses $85.70; and mules $102.10 per head. While the index of prices received by farmers now stands at 95 per cent of pre-war, prices paid by farmers, including interest and taxes, are at 128 per cent of their pre-war base, giving the farm dollar a purchasing power of 77 cents. According to the findings of the bureau of agricultural economics, the rate of farm wages now averages 120 per cent of pre-war, while the industrial wage level stands at 202.

"SEASONED WITH SALT"

It is often the very little things that cause discomfort—such as a pebble or nail in the shoe. And likewise the simplest remedy is often the best for the preservation of health.

Workers in factories perspire in warm weather, and to offset the fatigue of excessive perspiration started taking oatmeal, candy and sugar in water. Finally, some workers discovered that salt helped their physical condition during the summer months.

Now, small salt tablets are available for the workers at the drinking fountains of General Motors factories throughout the country. Doctors explain that perspiration often drains the body of too great an amount of salt which must be replaced to renew health and vitality. It is said that the results of using these salt tablets has been remarkable in the prevention of heat prostration and the general weakening effect of summer weather.

FUGITIVE ELUDES OFFICERS IN ELM STREET CHASE

Richard Herrick Makes Break from Officers After Arrest

TWO SHOTS IN AIR

Young Man Wanted by California Authorities to Answer to Two Felony Charges

Making a break from officers who tried to take him into custody Friday morning of last week on Elm street, Richard Herrick of this village is still at large and the police authorities are conducting a search over a wide area. Friday morning at about 10 o'clock Police Officer Peter McDonough received a telegram from California authorities asking that Herrick be held for them. He is wanted on the West Coast on two felony counts, according to information received here. Officer McDonough immediately got in touch with the Sheriff's office and in company with Sheriff Fred F. Fox, Under-Sheriff Perry R. Bennett and Jailer John Smith, went to where Herrick was staying at No. 28 Elm street, to apprehend him. When they arrived, Herrick was in bed and officers aroused him and were taking him to the Sheriff's car parked in front of the house.

Walking between the Sheriff and Officer McDonough Herrick made no pretense of trying to evade them and as they neared the car he broke away from the officers without warning and ran across the street into the field behind the Baptist church. Sheriff Fox fired three shots into the air in an attempt to halt the fugitive but he continued on his way.

Other officers were summoned and a search in that area was conducted until noon. Several tips were turned in to his whereabouts but in each instance Herrick eluded capture. He was reported as having been near the Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital and search in that area failed to reveal anything. A report was received from a family on Susquehanna avenue and the officers got a glimpse of him there, but the fleet-footed fugitive made off and nothing further has been heard of him.

When taken into custody he was wearing a white sweater and the last time he was seen he was wearing a dark one. Sheriff Fox immediately notified police officials at various points on the highways in this area. All roads leading from Cooperstown have been posted and a careful watch is being kept on all cars leaving the area, with the idea that he will probably hitch-hike out of town.

Herrick formerly lived in Cooperstown and for the past several years has been in California. About a month ago he came back East and has been in Cooperstown for the past few days.

COURTS MAY TEST NEW CHERRY VALLEY RULING ON HAND BILL ADS

An ordinance, recently adopted by the Cherry Valley village board may be tested in courts, it was learned last week.

Joseph J. Gore, who conducts a tourist restaurant on the turnpike west of Cherry Valley, is at odds with the board. Gore has been giving handbills to tourists as they stop at the traffic signal in Cherry Valley. Edna Laymon, who operates a restaurant, and W. C. Waldron who conducts a tavern, protested. When it was found that an ordinance prohibiting the distribution of handbills could not be enforced, the village board held a special meeting and adopted a new one, according to Almond Cramer, village attorney.

While the new ordinance allows distribution of handbills only when a license is procured, it does not become effective until August 29th, except in the case of Gore, where it is effective at once. He has been served with a copy.

Gore asserted that he would continue distribution. Attorney Cramer warned that he would prosecute.

Gore argued that the ordinance injures his business; that it is the only way he has to advertise. He is using the same plan at Richfield Springs.

68TH ANNUAL LAY-WALRAT REUNION HELD AT HYDE BAY

The sixty-eighth annual reunion of the Lay-Walrat family was held at Hyde Bay on Saturday, August 19th, with thirty-eight members present from Willimantic, Conn., Amherst, Mass., Montclair, N. J., and many nearby places in New York.

After a sumptuous dinner had been eaten, letters were read from absent relatives and the following officers were elected:

President, Robert Walrat, East Springfield; vice-president, Thomas Francis, Fort Plain; secretary, Alice C. Clarke, Schuyler Lake; treasurer, Kenneth Branch, East Springfield.

The next reunion will be held the first Saturday in August, 1939, at Hyde Bay on Otsego Lake.

It pays to advertise in The Otsego Farmer.

ON Year For Fruit

With the exception of pears, this appears to be an off season in fruit production for New York State, according to a state-federal report issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Indications point to a smaller production of practically all important varieties of apples, with the best production expected in the Hudson Valley. Western and Northern New York have generally light production in prospect. However, these last two areas have had less trouble in keeping their fruit protected from insects and disease organisms. Frequent rains during the past several weeks have made it very difficult for many growers in the Hudson Valley to adequately protect their fruit.

Fear production in New York promises to be above average and this season's crop of grapes will be light. The vines were not in the best of condition when winter set in and were injured still further during the winter.

MATRIMONIAL

Filkins-Babcock

Miss Rowena A. Babcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Babcock of Cooperstown, and Gordon B. Filkins, son of Berton J. Filkins of Richfield Springs, were united in marriage at the Warren Baptist church at Jordanville, Saturday, by the Rev. Allen Brown of Richfield Springs.

The couple was attended by Mrs. Lewis Royce of Adams, sister of the groom, and Duward Babcock, brother of the bride. The wedding march was played by Miss Olive King, accompanied on violin by Lorse King, niece and nephew of the groom.

The bride wore white mousseline-de-toile and carried white roses. The matron of honor was attired in white striped mousseline-de-toile with yellow accessories.

Ushers were Milton Street of Richfield Springs, and Glen Hoke of Jordanville.

The bridal party took dinner at the Prospect Hotel at Herkimer, after which the couple left for a trip to the Adirondacks.

The bride is a graduate of Van Hornesville Central school and Cobleskill State school. She is a member of the Alpha Sigma Delta sorority and has a position at the Van Hornesville school. The groom is a graduate of Richfield Springs High school and Syracuse University, where he was a member of the Gamma Phi, honorary physical education fraternity.

Friends were present from Rochester, Cooperstown, Fly Creek, Van Hornesville, Adams, Herkimer and Yonkers.

Mills-McRorie

Miss Roberta McRorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McRorie, formerly of Middlefield, was married in the Methodist Episcopal church in that village Sunday afternoon to Russell Mills, son of Mrs. Claud Miller of Schererville, Ind. and the late William Mills of Middlefield.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Benjamin Ridgely, and the bride was given in marriage by her twin brother, Robert McRorie, of Oxford. Mrs. John Castello of Oneonta sang, "Because," and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Doris Bennett of Springfield, Mass.

The bride wore a dress of white tailored lace over white satin and her finger-tip veil of white net was fastened by a cap of orange blossoms. She carried a spray of white asters and white roses.

Miss Ruby Mills, a sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of coral net trimmed with taffeta. Her bridesmaids, Miss Grace Crain of Cherry Valley and Miss Doris Ames of Richfield Springs, wore peacock blue taffeta. Their hats were of leghorn straw and they carried colonial nosegays.

The bride's mother wore deep plum purple crepe with picture hat and accessories to match, and the mother of the bridegroom was attired in midnight blue with matching hat and gloves.

Roger Gray of Middlefield was Mr. Mills' best man and the ushers were John Castello and Kenneth Bennett, both of Oneonta.

The bride was graduated from the Cherry Valley High school with the class of 1930 and received the degree of Bachelor of Science from Itasca College, Department of Physical Education, in 1931. Since that time she has been connected with the Adult Education program in Worcester and Oneonta and has also done substitute work in the Oneonta High school. She is a member of the Phi Delta Pi sorority.

Mr. Mills was graduated from the Cherry Valley High school in 1931 and is at present employed in the Service department of the International Business Machines corporation in New York City.

After a motor trip through northern New York, Mr. and Mrs. Mills will make their home in Jamaica, L. I.

Mallory-Tyler

Miss Cora Edwina Tyler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tyler of Middlefield, became the bride of Kenneth Reynolds Mallory, son of Mrs. William Mallory of the Beaver Meadow road, at a pretty wedding ceremony performed by the Rev. Wilbur C. Dodge of Cooperstown on the lawn of the bride's home, Sunday afternoon.

The bride wore a gown of dusky pink silk crepe and carried a shower bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. Her bridesmaid, Miss Madeline Tyler, a sister, wore light green silk crepe and carried a bouquet of pink and white cosmos. Her mother wore blue and silver silk crepe with white rose buds.

Merton Harris of Mt. Vision was best man.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Dorothy Tyler, a cousin of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Ray Tyler.

Following the ceremony lunch was served for fifty guests on the lawn by Mahlon Tyler, brother of the bride, assisted by George, Kenneth, Harold and Wesley Tyler and Marvin Smith, cousins of the bride. A color scheme of pink and white was very effectively carried out.

RESIDENTS PLAN RESTRICTED SPEED AT VAN HORNESVILLE

If efforts of local residents are successful, Van Hornesville will be the second in this area to have a thirty-five-mile-per-hour speed limit along a state highway.

Supervisor Burton J. Walrat said restrictions will be sought along Route 80 which passes through that village home of the most modern model rural schools in the state.

At present the only restricted zone in this section is on Route 5 through East Herkimer. This was established because of the density of the population along the heavily traveled highway just east of the village, and the troops in the East Herkimer sub-station have been strictly enforcing the new regulation.

Supervisor Walrat visited the State Police sub-station in East Herkimer recently, requesting the establishment of a zone in Starkville and Van Hornesville. His request will be referred to the State Traffic Commission by the troopers for action.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Steere held open house Tuesday afternoon at their home at Fly Creek in observance of their Golden Wedding anniversary. With them for the occasion are their daughter, Mrs. W. Raymond Thornton of Glen Ridge, N. J., another daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison S. Dodge and their daughter, Miss Martha Jane Dodge, of Hornell.

Miss Elvaine Ingalls of Hartwick and Fred J. Steere were united in marriage at Hartwick fifty years ago today by the Rev. Dr. Truman F. Hall, former Methodist pastor in that village and also in Cooperstown. They formerly lived on a farm near Toddsville, but for the past seventeen years have made their home in Fly Creek. Both are in good health.

A wide circle of friends in this locality unite in extending to the esteemed couple the heartiest of congratulations on the happy event.

EXPERIENCE OF LOST EXPLORER MOVES FILM PLOT

The story of a bold young adventurer who penetrates the steaming jungles of the Malay peninsula in search of a mysterious white tiger is told in "Boo-loo," the new jungle drama, which Paramount will present next Saturday at the Smalley Theatre.

Colin Tapley, the suave importation from New Zealand, plays the leading role in a cast which is made up of a dozen experienced Hollywood players plus hundreds of Malay natives, many of whom had never seen a white man until the "Boo-loo" production unit penetrated their domains.

"Boo-loo" was produced and directed by a man who knows more about the jungle and its inhabitants than any one in the motion pictures. He is Clyde E. Elliott, who brought "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Devil Tiger" to the screen. "Boo-loo" represents one of this year's boldest production experiments, as Elliott took his technical crew and his featured players on a journey of twenty thousand miles—to Malaya—and back. More than a year was spent filming the picture.

Also second feature, Alison Skipworth and Polly Moran in the comedy hit "Ladies in Distress."
